Description

Buddha AK

This variety dates back to the 70s, when its incredible power set a benchmark into the cannabis industry; very few crosses, to this day, have managed to equal and or even less, exceed it. The name of this classic erroneously leads non-expert growers to believe that it refers to the weapon of war. When really, its origin is from one of its parents, a pure Afghan Kush.

Our selection comes from ancient cuttings kept for over 20 years that still maintain incredible vigor. Buddha AK, it cannot be otherwise, has been developed by our breeders to make it even more resistant and easy to grow.

Buddha Ak has a more compact size and it is easy to grow. We have eliminated the excessive,uncontrolled growth of its sativa parents as much as possible, maintaining its essence, production and power in much more compact voluminous branches that surprise even experts.

On the other hand, Buddha AK is chosen among the specimens with the highest concentrations of THC; this will make you understand why this classic continues to fill cabinets and its smoke will satisfy even to the most demanding consumers.
