Description

Honeybells

Honeybells (DS34) is the result of crossing Caramelo (DS20) (Lavender x Lavender), a mainly sativa strain with great genetic diversity – Hawaiian, Afghan, Colombian and Mexican - and highly valued for its unmistakeable lavender taste and aroma, with Carmen, which is very rich in CBD.

With ratios of 1:1, this plant is ideal for medicinal use as well as for those who want to combine its use with tasks requiring concentration.

Owing to its THC-CBD ratio, this plant is only mildly psychoactive.

Easy to grow and produces great yields – nearly 1g per watt indoors and 2kg outside.

Honeybells has a very pleasant lime/lemon taste with floral notes and is the perfect choice for those looking for something fresh with high levels of CBD.
